Overview

The aim of our cautious mandate is to achieve additional capital and/or income growth over the rate of inflation with capital protection less important than achieving a better return on the investment. Investors are prepared to accept more risk in the hope of achieving this. Investors will accept short term fluctuations in the value of their investments but, in order to minimise the impact of short term market falls, are prepared to invest for a minimum of five years. Our cautious model portfolio will typically invest in a mixture of asset classes, predominantly by way of collective investment funds, in fixed interest securities and equities, both UK and overseas. Other assets, such as listed real estate and infrastructure, may be used to diversify the risk within the portfolio.
